

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus wherein only a partial key is stored in a hashing table is disclosed. By storing a partial key as opposed to storing the entire original key, less data is required to be stored in the hash table. This 5 reduces the attendant memory costs. The reduction in memory requirement does not degrade the hash functionalities whatsoever. Hashing conflicts can be fully resolved by consulting the partial key.